
Abstract

The thesis addresses measurement of laminar burning velocity of gaseous fuel mixtures of methane and CO2 (biogas-like) for various proportions of the diluent, and the enhancement in LBV due to addition of hydrogen to these mixtures. The heat flux method developed originally by the group of de Goey has been used, in addition to computations using ANSYS Fluent and Chemkin PRO.